The Near-Sighted Professor.

LENGTH, 310 FEET.

While taking his breakfast, the professor pushes his spectacles over his forehead. When putting on his hat to go out, he misses his glasses, and being very near-sighted, upsets everything in the room. Being late for college he rushes out of the house.

Not being able to see, he falls over everybody and everything. At last, while he wipes the perspiration from his brow, battered up from his many accidents, he finds the spectacles upon his forehead. Now he can see and is happy once more.
